Dear Mag. Dick,

In reference to your December 9, 1993 fax requesting information on the types of letter bombs in this matter, I contacted the FBI explosives unit who advised me that in their worldwide experience they had not encountered letter bombs as you describe them.

They noted, however, that homemade nitroglycerin of a high purity would have to be made by someone very well trained professionally.

They offered to provide you their through analysis of the letter bombs if you can furnish a detailed report from your explosive technicians.

Please advise if you would like this further detailed analysis.
I wish you continued success in your investigation.

Attached is a summary report on the Austrian letter bombs I spoke to you about. It contains more technical detail on the bombs and the possible motives. To date, the police have detained for investigation various right wing Nazi group folks and are convinced they are involved in the bombs but they have not, as yet, identified the actual subject.

The possibility exists of accomplices on a worldwide basis, likely in Germany, and even in U.S. and they would like any suggestions we could give them based on our experience.

I commend translation to [redacted] and ask that you give us any thoughts you may have on the artifices.

Best regards, [redacted]
